Suggestion for your trip in Paris

Hi bro!

What's up? I just read your previous mail and I'm so excited you're planning to go to Paris with Connor! As a Parisian, I know well this gorgeous city. And I think I know you well (I mean I hope so...). Anyways, first of all, you can forget about the classic Eiffel Tower or The Arc de Triomphe, because if I remember you can get dizzy. And there are a thousand things better than that in Paris. Here are my suggestions. I don't think you need me to say that, but I saw your holiday dates, and it's during Roland-Garros. You're a tennis fan, so I'm sure you're going to plan several days at the French Open. You can go for the full day, you won't have to worry about food, there are a lot of snack bars that sell delicious burgers and hot-dogs. But don't forget to bring a hat and sunscreen if it's a sunny day! Also, I read that your boyfriend is a huge fan of music, and you wanted suggestions of concerts. You guys can check on Bercy's concerts. They aren't posted yet, but I'm sure you'll find something at the time. Close to the AccorHotels Arena, there is the really cute Bercy Village, a paved courtyard bordered with white stone storehouses and quiet terraces. It's absolutely adorable! There is a Five Guys where you can take a hot-dog and a milk-shake before a concert. Or if you're here for lunch, there is this restaurant named "Le paradis du fruit" (The fruit paradise), where you can compose your own smoothie with fresh fruit and order some delicious toast bread and salads. I already went there one time, and I wasn't disappointed! Now we got to talk about The Marais. This is a place you absolutely need to go during your trip. It's a little village in the 3rd arrondissement of Paris that was built on marshland. There are a lot of museums of every time period. A museum you need to visit there is the Pompidou center, but you also can go to the Picasso museum. In this neighborhood the food is amazing, it's great for culture with the museums, it's romantic and safe, it's beautiful, and you can go shopping. Another place you need to go is the 10th arrondissement, along the canal Saint-Martin. It's quiet there and you can grab something to eat and chill along the canal; These are my two favorite places in Paris. I think now this is time to talk about shopping. I saw your apartment is on the 8th arrondissement of Paris, Boulevard Haussmann (fancy!), which is near to what we call "Les Grand Magasins": "Les Galeries Lafayette" and "Le Printemps", two luxury malls. And for Connor, there is close to those shops a Citadium, a street-wear lil mall that I personally love! If you still aren't tired of shopping and you want more, you just have to go to the Saint-Lazare train station, then you take the line L of the "Transilien", direction "La Défense". You're now at La Grande Arche (The Great Arch in English), in the business district of Paris. But don't worry, where you are is such a nice place. And there are two other big malls: "Les 4 Temps" and the "CNIT". And there are a lot of different shops there. If you want more details you should check the links at the end of this mail. And finally, if you and your boyfriend are tired of shopping, you can go home, or you can take the line L again, and go to the Bécon Park in Courbevoie. This park is not far away from La Défense, and it's a really nice park. And this is also my childhood park! Now that you're there you can lie in the grass or walk under the trees. Then if you want to go home, you just need to go to the Bécon train station, and you take the line J, terminal Saint-Lazare. You're welcome. Here it is! If you have any questions or if you want more suggestions let me know.

Love you man

Pauline
